It has made a decided "hit" in securing the sole right for Canada of "The Farmer's New Guide," a well bound and handsomely illustrated volume of 778 pp., published at $2.50 and not sold at a lower price except in connection with the "Rural." Pirates of Belle Isle.

The stories told by the shipwrecked crew of the steamship Mariposa, who were brought up from the Strait of Belle Isle by the steamship Austrian, read more like the tales of piracy of a century ago than of a present day incident. A blinding snow storm was raging when the big Dominion liner struck on the jagged rocks of Point Armour, at 2 o'clock in the morning of Tuesday, Sept. 24. The saloon passengers were landed on the rocks as soon as practicable, along with their baggage. The steamer had been aground but a few hours before a band of Belle Isle pirates made their appearance. They first paid their attention to the baggage of the saloon passengers, which they removed some distance inland. H.M.S. Buzzard, of the Newfoundland patrol service, fortunately happened to come along. When acquainted with the situation, a party of blue jackets, fully armed, were landed, and started in pursuit. The pirates were taken unawares, enjoying themselves around a camp fire. One swarthy fellow had donned the uniform of Capt. Casgrain, of the Royal Engineers, a young Canadian returning to join his regiment. All the effects of the passengers were recovered, and the pirates warned away. The Mariposa will be a total loss, but most of the live stock and a considerable part of her other cargo will be saved. As already stated, the passengers were forwarded on the steamship

PRINCE ALBERT, OCT. 7, 1895

If reports from Greenland are correct Dr. Nansen has been at the North Pole, or at least much nearer to that mystic centre than any other explorer, venturous as many of them have been. Between New Siberia, which Nansen sailed for, and the point he is reported to have been seen at, there lies the northern part of this continent and the island of Greenland. The making of such a voyage must have taken the Fram very far north, and in waters never before traversed by a ship. Nansen will deserve his honors, if, as seems possible, they have been won and while most maritime nations would have preferred their own flag to have been first carried to the oft tried for pinnacle, none will envy the descendant of the viking the triumph he planned and struggled for.

Lord Dunsen denies that he ever received an offer from Mr. Iselin to sail the protested Valkyrie-Defender race over again, and the course pursued by the Defender's managers are certainly calculated to convey the impression that such an offer would not be made. On chief source of trouble in the race of 1895, as in some of previous years, appears to have been that the New York officials laid too much stress on the fact that they were contesting for a cup, but it has lost most of its grace, and trying to give it a polish by pretending to have done things test evidently were not done—or else were not done regularly—is plainly a failure. The last America's Cup is a good thing to forget about.

Lieut. Peary has reached St. John's Nfld., in safety. The second twelve months of his stay in the Arctic do not appear to have been as profitable as the first. The acclimatizing of the first year did not make the men stronger for the trials of the second, and sickness among the members prevented the accomplishment of the leader's plans. Lieut. Peary, however, has done enough in the way of northern exploration to stand the comparative failure of one part of his venturesome work and will merit the rest he is now likely to take.

Sir Oliver Mowat's health is seriously broken. The Little Premier is in his 76th year, and has borne the heat and burden of a long day. It is in the course of nature that he should fail. But his labors have been brightened by rather more than a fair share of public life's successes, and if the memory of them encourages him in the struggle against the weakness of old age his opponents will not seriously grudge the share they contributed towards them.

A gold mine at Rat Portage which was bought some time ago for $100,000, is reported to have been sold to English investors for $500,000. This is a kind of mining business in which Canadians have frequently been successful and those who bought from them otherwise. It is to be hoped that in the present instance the Englishmen will have good reason to be satisfied as the vendor.

Seventeen thousand persons are reported to have died of cholera in Japan. The island empire does not seem to be so far advanced in the science of public health as it is in that of war. A really civilized European nation that would let seventeen thousand of its people die from cholera in a few months would be counted disgraced.

Mrs. Langtry might take the trouble to make her paragraph advertisement consistent. In one case she is using her husband for divorce because he neglected to provide for her maintenance. In the other she is said to have been robbed of jewels worth $200,000. A woman with so much jewellery ought to be able to support herself.

It has cost $70 per head to land five bullocks in England from Australia, while the value of the animal at Sydney is only $20 per head. Under the heavy disadvantages of this expense in transport, it would seem improbable that Australia should become a successful competitor with America in the export of live cattle to Great Britain.

Russia, which bound herself by treaty not to fortify Sebastopol, has made that port a sort of Black Sea Constantinople. International treaties are a good deal like national statutes. They stop the little sinners; the big ones drive through them.

Dr. Parkhurst is a total abstainer, but says legal prohibition of the traffic in alcoholic beverages is not practicable unless public sentiment is in favor of it. According to the overthrow of Tammany a prohibition law, when it is practicable, will not be necessary, because the people will be abstainers from choice.

It is evident from the appearance of the last number of the Colonist that the mantle of the deceased publisher has fallen upon worthy shoulders. As a specimen of periodical literature this number of the Colonist would be a most creditable production for a much older and more densely populated country than Manitoba, and when we consider that every item contained in it is thoroughly and exclusively local, in design as well as in execution, we regard it as a matter of congratulation that our young country is able to show so conclusively that there is nothing wild or woolly about this part of the west, at least. The number is special, in that it is concerned with the Winnipeg district, and besides very full and interesting descriptive matter it contains an excellent map of the country with in a radius of 20 miles around the city. The object of the map is to show in a graphic manner the large amount of vacant lands within so short a distance of the prairie metropolis, and this is effectively done by depicting these vacant lands in red. The anomaly of so much vacant land within a walk of the largest city in western Canada is discussed; and remedies for this undesirable state of affairs are suggested. Altogether it is certain that the attention of newcomers cannot fail to be attracted to this much neglected district. The number is devoted to Northwestern matters in general. Indeed, the most striking characteristic of the magazine is that it is, in every sense of the word, thoroughly and worthily representative of Western Canada.

Mr. T.B. Winaett has returned from the east after an extended trip through the eastern cities. While east he received a patent for his improved grain cleaner. This mill is made with a detachable fan, can be used with or without fan. While the mill has an equal amount of blast, it has also in addition to it a cyclone separator, which removes all food seeds perfectly. The construction of this mill is very simple, being a screen of proper mesh, set at an angle, an endless apron runs over the screen. The grain from the shoe falls between the inclined sieve and the endless apron. This apron keeps the grain evenly distributed over the sieve so as to allow the seeds to fall through. There is also an attachment to agitating the sieves to keep the meshes from filling up.

The Winnipeg Tribune is again out with a great offer in connection with The Weekly Tribune. The paper is offered free for the balance of this year, and each subscriber is presented with a beautiful premium picture entitled "The Family Pets." This picture has been painted specially for The Tribune, and is pronounced a work of art. Fuller particulars are given in the advertisement in another column.

The October issue of Waghorn's Guide published to-day is specially noticeable for an addition of much merit. An index to railway stations is given which will enable anyone to turn readily to the page in the Guide giving the time card information. This in addition to the very complete alphabetical list of all post offices and locations furnishes a most complete gazetteer of the Western Provinces up to date, and leaves no ignorance of the whereabouts of a place however unimportant in our own province.

THIS WORLD OF OURS.

The Persians have a different name for every day in the month.

It is stated that in some of the English agricultural districts the population has decreased forty per cent. since the last census.

All the chickens in the western part of French Guinea are perfectly white. It is impossible to find one with a colored feather.

It is claimed that in the vicinity of Mildura, Victoria, Australia, one man can attend to five acres of poppy plants, and that the yields with proper care, should be worth $1,000.

The city of Kilmory has in the last decade added thirty-four per cent. to its inhabitants, till the number above 100,000, or nearly as many as the old Barren capital of Mandalay.

A new series of postage stamps has been issued by the public of San Salvador. All stamps previous to 1892 have been called in, and only the new stamps will be accepted in payment of postage hereafter.

Long and Terrible Illness from Blood Poisoning

Completely Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Mrs. Mary E. O'Fallon, a very intelligent lady of Piqua, Ohio, was poisoned while assisting physicians at an anxiety 6 years ago, and soon terrible ulcers broke out on her head, arms, tongue and throat. Her hair all came out. She weighed but 78 lbs., and saw no prospect of help. At last she began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and at once improved; could soon get out of bed and walk. She says: "I became perfectly cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla."
